MY NECESSITY YOUR OPPORTUNITY

Candidly, folks, we are overstocked and are determined to get rid of our surplus stocks at once regardless of cost or loss. We are going to cut our stock to half its present proportions and have put prices on the merchandise that should accomplish our purpose in a hurry. Too Much Goods! That's the sole and only reason for this gigantic sale. We must pay the penalty of our own mistake in buying too heavily. Never before have we staged a sale like this. But a crisis confronts us. Loads of merchandise must be sold, and sell it we will, for cost and profit are forgotten, it's a question of unloading our stocks. Unquestionably you will find this one of the greatest opportunities you have ever had to buy first-class America's standard makes at a tremendous saving.

Give us a call and there is no doubt in my mind that we can convince you that your dollar does double duty here during this rapid merchandise event. SI RAPPAPORT, Prop.

SPOTLIGHTS ON SPORT

by JACK KEENE

Doping out a pennant race is a thankless task, an uncertain one, and, in many ways, a wasted effort. Reversal of playing form on the part of a few stars or a wonderful spurt on the part of a few "kids" can alter the whole scheme of things in any circuit.

This season, in addition to the usual number of "form" upsets, Old Joe Hardbuck has thrown more monkey wrenches into the wheels of speculation than he has in many a campaign. Practically every team in both the American and National leagues has been handicapped to date by injuries to important members of the regular lineup.

Just when Ty Cobb seemed set to give the A. L. a thrill Herman Pilette and George Dauss were taken ill.

Lee Fohl's Red Sox were thundering along at an amazing pace when Dudley Lee, brilliant young shortstop, was injured.

Fred Stephenson, second baseman and a power at bat for the Indians, was out of the game for weeks with a bum knee. Coveleskie, veteran pitcher, has been nursing a lame arm.

Three of Connie Mack's best youngsters, have spent time on the bench and in bed with injuries and sickness.

Erin Ward, brilliant infielder of the Yank team, was forced to leave the game after playing 55 consecutive games. Joe Bush suffered a sick spell.

After Frank Chance was forced to resign the management of the White Sox because of ill health Johnny Evers, who succeeded him, fell a victim of appendicitis.

Marly McManus was lost to the Browns when that team needed the star second sacker badly.

Rube Marquard, set for another good year with the rejuvenated Braves, was operated on for appendicitis also.

Rogers Hornsby, mainspring of the Cardinal team, was sick for several days.

Jimmy Ring, main pitcher of the Phils, worked for a month, after the season opened and then succumbed to illness.

The Giants lost Kelly for a while. And these form only a partial list of the misfortunes that have befallen the clubs. These are enough, however, to kick any dope into a cocked hat.

Up again. "Wid" Matthews, the dapper little center fielder who set the American league on fire for a spell last season, is back in the big show again. Clark Griffith decided the peppery one can help his team and has given the Milwaukee club another out fielder and a wad of cash for "Wid."

When Matthews first joined the Athletics last season he played brilliant ball in center. Some critics called him the best young outfielder discovered in years. At bat, for a time, he hit well over .300. When I saw him, at his best, he did appear to be the find of the year. Then he slipped.

Connie Mack finally benched him after he had failed to get out of a general slump. Close observers of the lad's work decided that the sudden popularity had taken him off his feet. He apparently had become temperamental.

Whatever the cause might have been, Matthews finally found himself back in Milwaukee.

In his old stamping ground he hit his stride again and his showing there this season indicates that he is right.

The other day Mad Hatter, another one of Harry Sinclair's horses, won the Suburban handicap, one of the prized turf renewals of the eastern tracks. And the victory caused close followers of this horse's idiosyncrasies.

Here is a horse which has won thirty-one races in his career. Eighteen of these victories have been in important stake events. He has started in 90 races. And the question is raised as to why—with his apparent ability, speed, courage and stamina—he hasn't won more.

The answer seems to be a carefree disposition.

In his daily workouts, according to his trainers, he is docile, easily managed, and willing to "run his head off." He always looks fit. When he enters the track for a race he carries this willingness with him—usually on as far as the barrier.

On those days when he led the field to the wire he remained in that mood. On the other days he just decided not to extend himself. He gets sort of sulky. The fact that his owner, his owner's friends and other folks are getting on him of course worries him not at all.

He has won over $187,300. But for this uncertain disposition he might now rank with Man-o-War, Zev, and the other great money winners.

No one can explain his failure to win regularly. And his frequent reversal of form precludes the possibility of classing him with the greats of the game when he apparently has everything that goes to make up a real wonder-horse.

Here is his record to date. It's a record that any horse might well be proud of.

Won the Suburban handicap. Captured the Metropolitan handicap twice.

Won the Jockey Club cup twice. Duplicated that feat in the Kings County handicap.

Won the Yorktown handicap. Won the Champlain handicap. Won the Bowler handicap. Captured the Pierrepont handicap.

Won the Phillips-Albion handicap. Captured the Pimlico Serial handicap. Won the October handicap.

Those who picked the Giants and Yankees to romp through another season to their fourth flag and win the World's series mean are up on these days as both clubs fight tooth and nail to stick at or around the top.
